

Special Enrollment Period for Qualifying Events

You may be able to enroll in health insurance right now.

Open Enrollment for 2019 health insurance coverage is over, but you may be able to get insurance if you qualify for a Special Enrollment Period (SEP).

Life changes that may qualify you for an SEP include:

- Loss of health insurance during the last 60 days or expected in the next 60 days
 - Loss of employer coverage, university-sponsored insurance, an individual plan that you purchased in certain circumstances (i.e. can't qualify if loss of individual plan is due to non-payment), coverage through a family member's plan, or lost eligibility for Medicaid, CHIP or Medicare
- Changes in household for you or household member in past 60 days
 - Marriage or having a baby, adopting a child or placing a child in foster care
 - Divorce or legal separation and subsequent loss of health coverage
- Changes in residence – if you have had health coverage for some time during the 60 days prior to the move
 - Moving to a new home with a new zip code or county, or moving to the US from a foreign country or US territory
 - If you're a student, moving to or from the place you attend school
- Change in eligibility for Marketplace coverage or help paying for coverage
- Other qualifying changes like a becoming a US citizen, leaving incarceration or certain types of enrollment errors when you signed up for coverage

Check to see you qualify for a Special Enrollment Period at Healthcare.gov, the Health Insurance Marketplace While you're there, find out if you qualify for an Advance Premium Tax Credit and other cost sharing that may save you money and reduce your monthly premium and other out-of-pocket expenses.
